Daily Proverb—"If you command wisely you

Russia has placed a tax on all employed and employing persons, excepting agricultural workers, the army, navy, police, students, pensioners and persons who have received honorary decorations, to raise a fund with which to build houses for bolshevik workers. Another exemplification of the equality of which the communistic soviet government prates!

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad has put into service two trains air cooled and ventilated by systems similar to those used in theaters. It's a great fight the railroad are making in the face of almost every conceivable discouragement to recover the passenger business they have lost in the utmost success.

The majority of the members of the United States supreme court evidently lean to the view that the law is the law even though it does not always meet the views of aliens seeking special privileges and may work what may in some cases be considered hardships. Its decision is that aliens seeking citizenship rights must take the oath of allegiance as it stands and not as they would have it.

Two professors of the University of Chicago after long and profound thought have decided that housewives can save time and be more efficient by washing dishes but twice a week. Apparently little consideration is given by these two specimens of the intelligentsia to neatness in the home.

Federal Judge Wilkerson of the circuit court of appeals in Chicago has ordered Tony Volpe, henchman of Al Capone, remanded to the immigration authorities for deportation. The undesirable aliens at last are discovering that Uncle Sam is able to find the necessary array of teeth in the laws seemingly held toothless by authorities of the state and municipal courts in Chicago.

Another world record established. Rev. G. Z. Brown, Negro preacher of a church in Washington, preached without interruption for twelve hours and ten minutes. There can be no question of the religious fervor of his congregation to endure in silent patience a verbal bombardment like that.

The labor department in Washington announces that retail food prices were sixteen per cent. lower March 15 of this year than they were on that date in 1930, and that they represented only 126 per cent. of what they were, on the average, in 1913. Considering the wages of the two years, it's a fine showing from the consumer's viewpoint, if one doesn't stop to consider the relative degree of unemployment during the years 1913 and 1931.

Manipulating Taxes.

The end of the week finds the general assembly practically finished with its task of revising the Ohio taxation set-up. The intangibles bill and the auto license tax bill, the nucleus of the program, have been worked over and the former accepted in both houses. The auto license tax bill, passed by the house, is expected to be passed by the senate without delay. No one knows what the governor will do, but until he indicates otherwise it is assumed he will endorse the program of the assembly.

It will take considerable time for the statisticians to figure out exactly what the significance of the revision is to taxpayers, and more time after that for the people to understand the statisticians' conclusions in terms of personal experience.

The personal property tax will be taken off automobiles, along with household goods. The tax didn't pay. To compensate for the loss to the counties, the state will apportion them funds from tax returns on intangibles and auto license tags. The rates on the latter have been increased approximately 100 per cent. to produce $11,000,000 more in revenue than before. With the exception of expensive makes of automobiles, and trucks, automobiles will be taxed about the same as they were before, when returned for personal property taxation. There will be the advantage that no one will be able to evade equal taxation if the new bill is enacted.

This has been an important week in Ohio. The assembly has shown an unexpected inclination to pull together and work out a tax program which, if it embodies certain errors of judgment and questionable principles, also embodies many sound points and good principles.

The new taxation code will not be placed in operation without experiencing many difficulties. It will be criticized harshly, and often justly.

It is important to remember, however, that it is based on a sound idea which will supplant an outmoded idea—uniform rule. The people will do well to be discreet in their criticisms until the new plan has been given a thorough trial.

Display the "Stars and Stripes."

The civic spirit manifested this year in the annual spring clean up campaign is a matter for community congratulation. Temporary organizations given life for the purpose of the campaign, official bodies, clubs, corporations, firms and individuals have striven and wholeheartedly worked to the one end of improving the physical appearance of the city and making it sanitary.

The county commissioners rendered splendid assistance, the city government has done its full share. The oldest resident will experience difficulty in recalling a time when individual residents did more, if so much, to make their properties attractive to the eye. It is fairly safe to say that more properties, both residential and business, have been brightened by coats of paint this spring than ever before. Excellent work has been done in the way of improving the condition of the streets and avenues. A number of organizations have worked to excellent effect to make our parks clean and attractive. It has not been one element of our population which has demonstrated its purpose to make the city inviting in appearance, but all elements, and some of the humblest properties in the city have achieved the very best results. Lawns and shrubbery, thanks to generous rainfalls, have thrived this year as they have not previously in many years, which has added greatly to the general effect, and the result is that the city will show at its best for next Tuesday's dedication.

This newspaper feels that it would deny itself a real privilege were it not to speak in commendation of the city-wide cooperation in this movement for cleanliness and beautification and confess honest admiration for the effect attained.

But much as citizens have done, they can yet do one thing more. Citizens may add to the pleasing effect and at the same time do honor to our President upon the occasion of his visit here next week by displaying the "Stars and Stripes." Every citizen owning a flag should thus make use of it at that time.

President Hoover is said to be planning a saving of $53,000,000 on the mails in two years. That will be good so far as it goes, but why not run the post office department upon a business basis and do away with its annual deficits by making it bear no more than the share of the departmental burdens than it rightfully should bear?

Past Twenty-One.

Politics exclude no one—not even iconoclastic youth. The two major parties, it is reported, are out to enlist the votes of every one over twenty-one, with an appreciative eye for the 8,000,000 new presidential electors who will be ready for their first vote by November, 1932. Bring them up in the way they should go, in their joint slogan.

Democrats are making speeches sharpened to tempt young voters; Republicans, with characteristic initiative, are holding a conference of young Republican leaders to instruct them how to combat dissenting beliefs. Both parties have detected a tendency among young people to stray away from old and established principles—almost a pronounced liberal trend, in fact.

It is foolish to grow alarmed about anything the 8,000,000 neophyte voters may or may not do, unless one happens to be a politician, of course, and can't help it. As for the liberal trend that has been observed by apprehensive party officials, it may be stated as a truism that most young people who have but recently come into their majority are part of a liberal trend in some direction. Later they settle down and become conservatives of one kind or another. It's part of the procedure of growing up, and nothing to worry about, because it can't be changed.

Republicans and Democrats may try hard as they will to calm down the progressive spirit of the young people, but they probably won't have an appreciable effect. Time alone can do it, and then only when its sobering effect is accompanied by the responsibilities that most people incur during their lifetimes.

Colorado has abolished any and all speed limits for traffic over her highway, but vehicles must be operated at a prudent and safe speed and drastic penalties are provided for driving a car while the driver is under the influence of liquor. That's the kind of a law which should be made uniform—and then enforced to the letter.

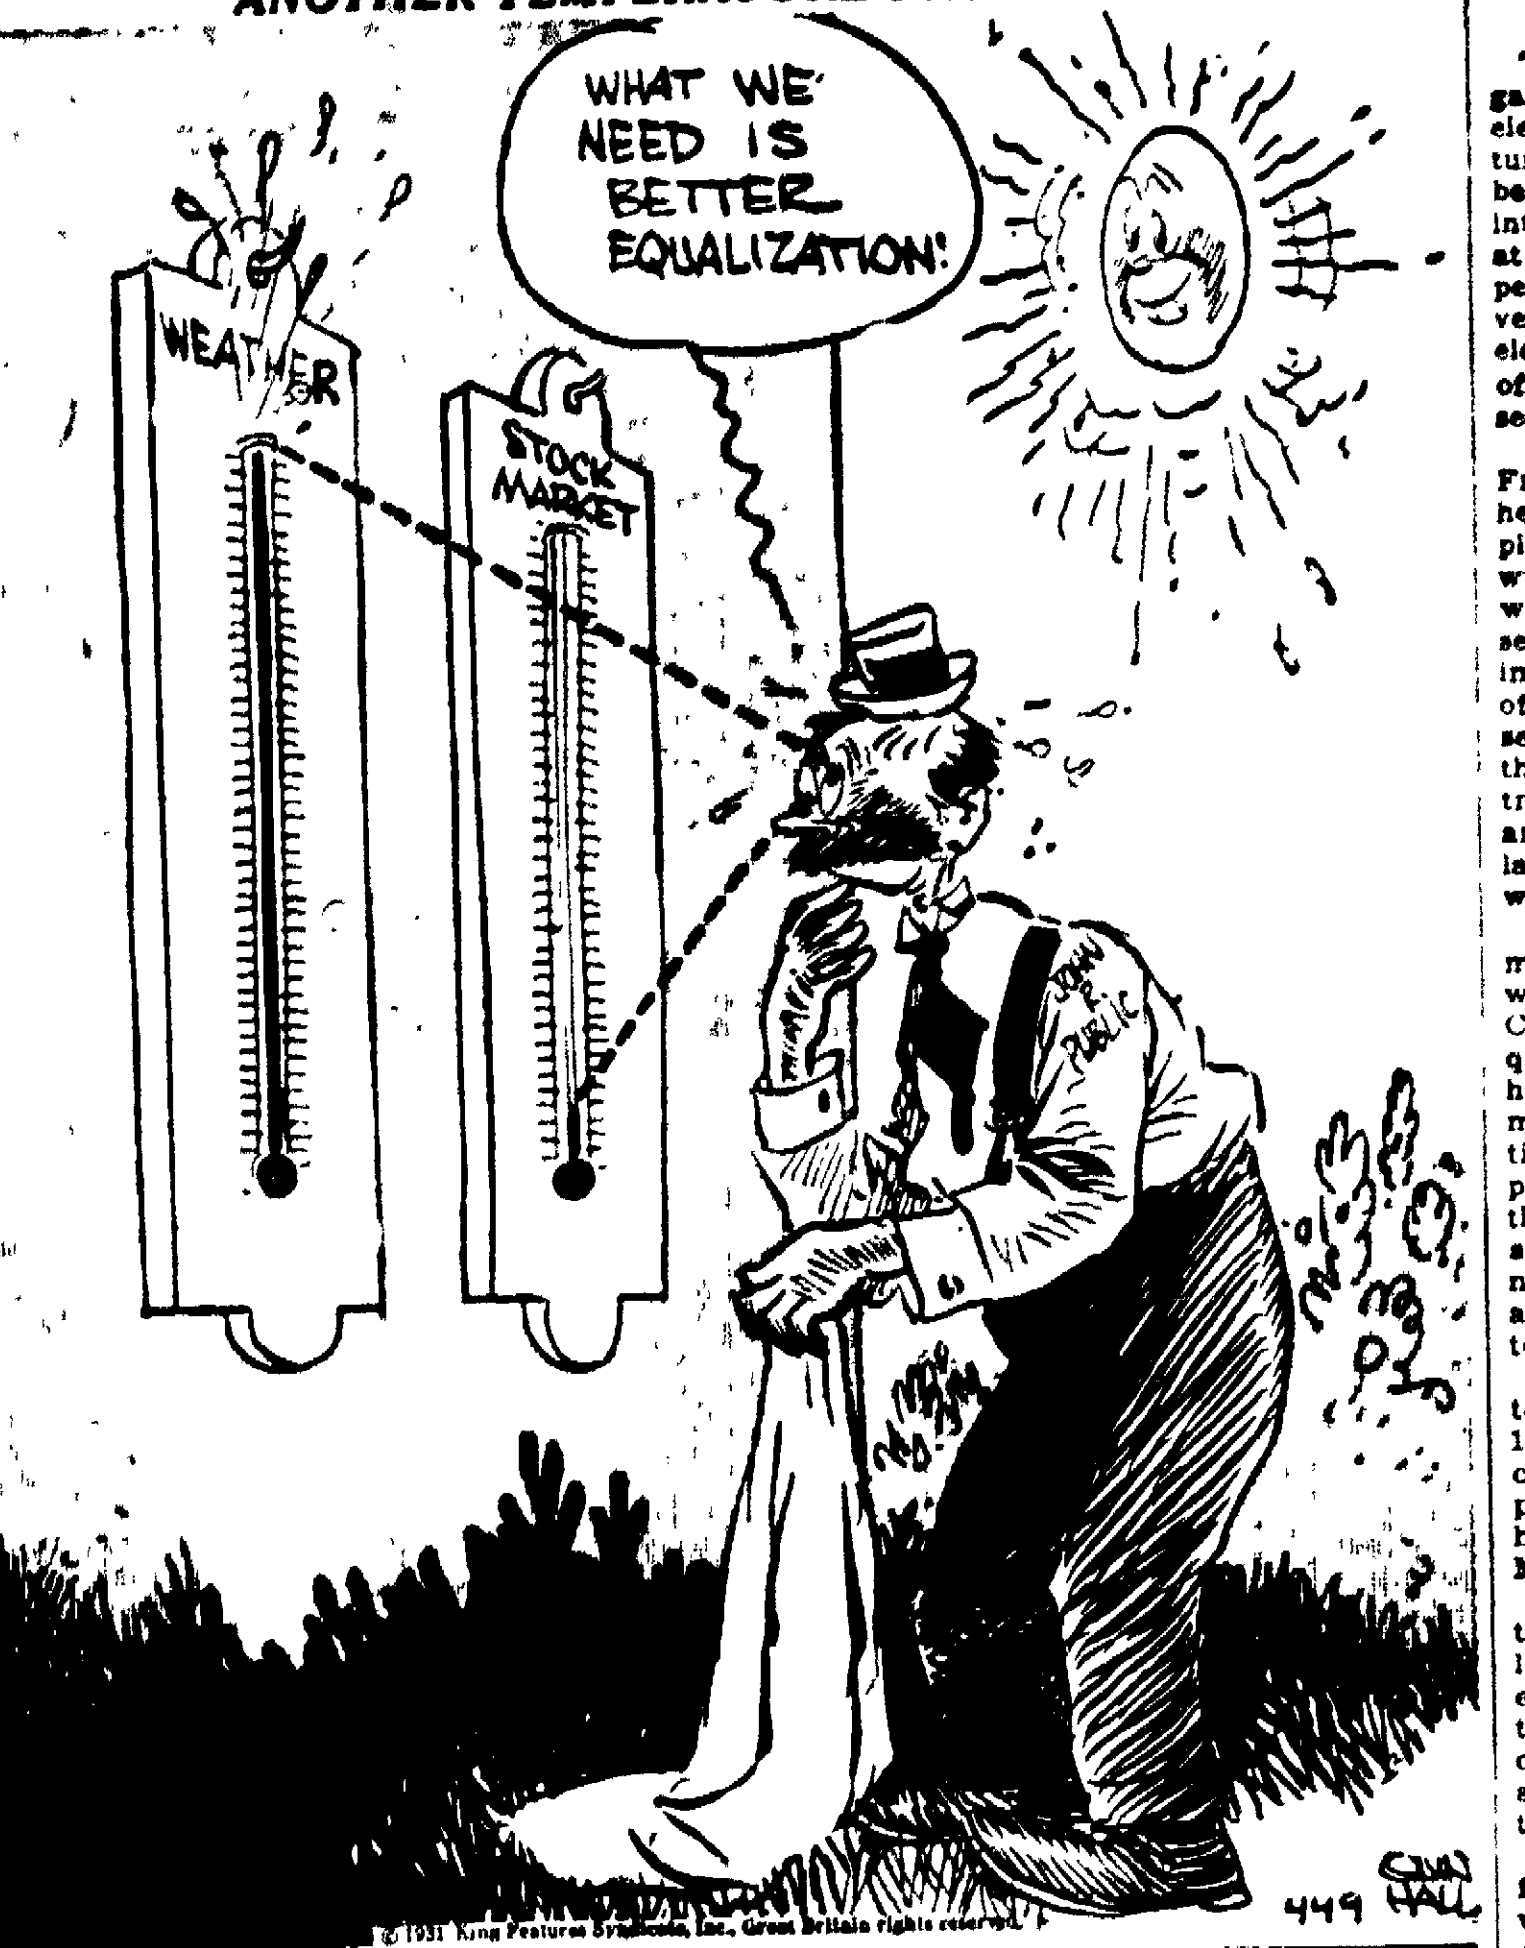

Discarding "Little Rollo."

There's a lot of sense in the insistence of Josephine Daskam Bacon, authoress, that children's books need to be adjusted to the times. The fact that Mrs. Bacon's conclusions on that score are obvious detracts no lot from their importance or interest. "Little Rollo" and his sickening little companions with ramrod backs and lily-white faces never were overly appealing figures in fiction or anywhere else. The sooner the last words are spoken over their graves the better off things in general will be. Death could be expected to have come from shock sooner or later, anyway. Three-quarters of an hour spent in the company of a group of modern children would dispel Rollo's simple Puritan illusions so thoroughly there would be nothing left of him but a wilted Eton collar. His painfully well-ordered hair would be curled and his delicate conscience sizzled in oil by the interests of healthy boys and girls of today.

It is not that they are any worse, or as bad, judged by absolute standards, than Rollo's select crowd. They just happen to have been squeezed a little harder by the press of modern living. At this point, it must be made clear that their reading interests do not lie in the direction of what half-baked criticism has lauded as realism, but rather in the direction toward which sane minds in the parental generation incline. Mrs. Bacon puts it this way: "Young people want good writing and good stories, mystery and romance, and a pervading sense of humor. The writers who furnish books with these qualities in them will find an eager following. Youngsters like to be told things, but they don't want their knowledge in words of one syllable."

What a pleasure it is to offer an anticipatory toast to the happy time when enough authors will have Mrs. Bacon's turn of mind to banish insipid books from the reading libraries offered to children.

CONCERNING LINCOLN'S STORIES.
A New York psychiatrist says that some of Abraham Lincoln's stories "were so frankly sexual as to be classified as obscene." A Brooklyn psychiatrist says they weren't. "The anecdotes of Lincoln," according to the latter, "were not obscene at all except to modern tastes as developed in cities." Out in the Middle West this Brooklynite found folks who have claimed that "the stories Lincoln told have been handed down from generation to generation by word of mouth."

Obscenity appears, then, to be geographical. What is obscene in a city drawing room need not necessarily be obscene in a country barnyard and vice versa. Such is the case despite the doctrine that there is one universal and immutable standard of right and wrong in language, as in life. Smelly Butler recently called that "awful old place" by its right name over the radio and was accused of using "obscene language." An historian of improper language in Great Britain relates that the language of a man accused in police court of using an obscene expression on a London street was that in his own part of London the expression was not regarded as improper or offensive.

The fact that Lincoln did not possess "the inhibiting influences of a New England environment" seems to bear but lightly on the question of the propriety of his anecdotes. Any one who has kicked around the New England countryside and fished and hunted with its denizens doesn't have to go great to pick up colorful stories or acquire a vocabulary of forceful epithets. The stories Lincoln used so masterfully to illustrate his points were of the social language he grew up with. When he reached Washington he was in a new environment. Some of his anecdotes offended ears attuned to an artificiality foreign to Lincoln's nature. Calling them "obscene" strikes one as stretching that very elastic word beyond legitimate lengths.—Detroit Free Press.

GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS.
Recently the ocean traffic bureau of this city took up the matter of barge lines on the Mississippi. It contended that the inland Waterways corporation—a concern backed by the government of the United States—was assuming rights in violation of the Constitution. A resolution setting forth this complaint has been forwarded to Washington by the chief of the bureau, George W. Edmonds.

This government-backed corporation's violation, according to the bureau, consists in not requiring shippers to pay ordinary storage charges commensurate with the service, and of supplying storage at rates that are not comparable with charges assessed by the Interstate Commerce commission. Here is disastattribution against the railroad serving this port, which would benefit if proper rates were required. The request is that the terminal methods of the barge lines shall be investigated.

Just another instance of the government in business. It is always ready to private enterprise, to individual initiative. Were the Mississippi barges operated in square competition to rail lines, there would at least be something like fairness prevailing. But the thing nothing fair about discrimination.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

ONE REASON WHY LIFE IS CHEAP.
The laws of quackery are more strange. In a southwestern state a youth who has repeatedly confessed that he murdered his father, mother and five brothers and sisters, and then set fire to the house, because he was enraged by parental refusal to let him use the family car, apparently is going to get off scot free. First of all, the boy pleaded guilty and was sentenced to prison for life. Smart attorneys found flaws in the procedure and got him out of trial. In the sparsely-settled county where the crime was committed, every eligible juror had formed some sort of opinion. In desperation, the trial judge transferred the case to another county, where a jury promptly convicted.

But now the state supreme court rules that the transfer technically invaded some vague constitutional right of the defendant. So the case is going to be dismissed. It should not require a Wickesham commission to find one reason why human life is cheap in this country.—Minneapolis Journal.

Protect Your Child.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Tremendous strides have been made in our understanding of diphtheria. Now it is possible to check the spread of diphtheria, as well as to treat effectively the individual case.

The defensive mechanism of the body which guards against diphtheria, as well as other diseases, depends upon the presence in the blood stream of certain substances, known as "antibodies." When these substances are present, the body possesses the ability to ward off diseases. The power is spoken of as "immunity."

If the Schick test is positive it means that if exposed to diphtheria, the individual will contract the disease.

Not every one exposed to diphtheria will contract the disease. This is because such persons have developed immunity. This is a matter of great importance in children. Children do not possess the immunity to disease such as adults. It is far simpler to have a Schick test made than to expose the child to the possibility of contracting the ailment.

The test is a simple procedure and painless. It affords a means of protection that should not be overlooked. No child should be denied it.

If your child has been vaccinated he should also be "Schicked." If no vaccination has been performed, please have this done at once, and at the same time, inquire about the Schick test.

Diphtheria could be completely eradicated if all children were immunized. The treatment is given when the baby is three months old. The usual method involves the injection of three doses of toxin-antitoxin over weekly intervals.

It is sometimes necessary to have the injections repeated. Babies effectively treated with toxin-antitoxin will not get diphtheria.

Andre Ampere.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The brilliant French scientist, Ampere, who gave such a powerful impetus to the study of electricity and magnetism, had the good fortune to make basic discoveries which came to be associated with his own name. When an international congress of electricians was held in Paris in 1821, for the purpose of adopting universal units for the fundamental quantities of electricity and magnetism, the practical unit of current was named in honor of his researches and their influence on the science.

Andre Marie Ampere was born at Lyons, France, on January 22, 1775. At an early age, he displayed the deepest interest in arithmetic, playing and calculating for hours at a time with pebbles or kidney beans. Even when he was ill, he continued his arithmetical researches. Ampere was a youthful prodigy who in later life made good the promise of his early youth.

When he reached the age of eighteen, he had mastered two of the greatest mathematical works of the day, Laplace's "Mechanique Celeste" and Lagrange's "Mechanique Analytique." After his marriage, he compelled him to teach for a time for a livelihood, but he made little advance in science, but better times came when he obtained the chair of physics and metaphysics in the central school of the Department of Aisne. His famous researches in electro-magnetism, however, did not begin until after he became professor of analytical calculus and mechanics at the Polytechnic School of Paris.

A report of Oersted's great discovery, made to the Institute of France, on September 11, 1820, fired Ampere with enthusiasm. He soon published an extraordinary paper embodying his discoveries, entitled "A Memoir on the Mutual Attraction of Two Electric Currents." The most notable of the consequences of these researches was that Ampere discovered a law concerning the attraction or repulsion of electric charges, and the distance between them, which was an analogue of Newton's law of universal gravitation. It was for this reason that Clerk Maxwell spoke of Ampere as the Newton of electricity.

The most epochal of all Ampere's discoveries, for magnitude of its material consequences, was the discovery of the method for making the electro-magnet. The consequences are too important for computation. Ampere's researches opened up the entire field of electricity and magnetism; and he did much to explain magnetic phenomena by means of electricity.

Ampere had many of the eccentricities of genius, yet remained one of the most lovable of men. He died on June 10, 1836; and his memory will survive throughout the history of science.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Inception of State Institution.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

From the lips of the late Dr. N. S. Townsend, a member of the first faculty of Ohio State university, who was more instrumental in securing the establishment of a state institution for the care of imbecile children than any other person, the writer heard the story of an incident that turned his attention to the possibility of doing something more for this class of unfortunate than merely "keeping" them.

He was visiting a private concern for caring for children once when a strolling band of musicians came along and played several selections for the children. Among the inmates was one child that was so abnormal mentally that it had never learned to walk. Its locomotion was by rolling on the floor or ground.

As soon as the music struck up this child began to play. The players' attention more completely than it had ever been seen to do anything else. It rolled to the feet of the musicians it lay in evident ecstasy while they played.

The superintendent was observing and wise, and guessed correctly that here was the door through which the child's mind might be reached, and he hired the musicians to play piece after piece while the other children helped it to its feet and sought to get it to walk by mechanically moving its feet to the time of the music.

For many days thereafter this was regularly done, with the result that the child soon learned to walk and became not merely normal, but a good musician, and Dr. Townsend lived to see him conduct a band of his own.

In 1853 Dr. Townsend was elected a state senator, and with this fresh in his mind he broached the matter of the state doing something for imbecile children to Governor Medill. The governor was at first skeptical, but finally agreed to urge the matter in his forthcoming message and he did. Out of it the present institution grew. The only action regarding this matter had been previously taken in Ohio was a resolution asking the superintendent of the Ohio lunatic asylum to secure data as to the number of imbeciles in the state and it was never reported.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, June 13.—I dropped around to the dentist today to have him slip a washer of something on one of my new remaining teeth. It is beginning to wobble somewhat like the Errol's off leg. Just one job of taffy and it is snapping at vittles with bare gums.

Otherwise I am dandy, thanks. Nobody has more fun in a dentist's chair than I. My dentist, Guy Campbell, is one of my older New York friends. When I came to town he was just out of dental college with a white face, a moth-eaten plush chair and a wavy faucet that whistled.

I have watched him progress into a marble-hailed edifice on the fashionable East Side where modernistic coppered elevators are manned by myrmidons in plum colored broadcloth. There's a Persian rug on the floor and a Cezanne on the wall—the way stuff.

When we have closed the door on the waiting Watson who receives the customers in the reception salon, the doctor drops his grand and professional manner. He doffs the stethoscope and professional corduroy and calls me for the double-headed corkscrew and calls me a cockeyed dandy, and I blister him as a fast silken tusk polisher.

I also exchange a few yarns—nothing of color, of course, but maybe a shade or two—wonder what has become of the old Second Street crowd, Smitty, the hotel clerk, Harry, the bartender, and Old Wash, the night elevator man. And sometimes we wind up wrestling.

Then I climb into the chair, open the man-moth cave and he begins peering around with a piece of wire. Every now and then he touches something that suggests the door bursting open of a tropical lightning bolt. But we just laugh it off. He and I also argue what he and horse mackerel.

Today he snipped off a couple of yards of rubber, clamped it on the offending molar and smeared it with something tasting like sour cream mixed with brass polish. Then he propped my mouth open, folded his arms and stood looking out the window in a sort of reverie. When I got lost in thought the friends often fetch me up by mosquito. I've a swell meal of the suddenly walked out on me. "I can't see you," I struggled to inquire, "no, I can't see you." "I may have side oo wok out au moi too!"

He just nodded and replied: "Oh, they are, fine thanks. The children are at the beach for the weather." He didn't understand a darn thing. I wasn't asking him about his family or children. I wanted to know if there was a chance of him walking out on me.

So I just sat there giving a Tom Thumb imitation of the Hoosier hotel and dribbling around the edge of the chair. Finally I ventured: "uch ankwa, oo oo oo it, oo oo oo it, oo oo oo it." which he translated into: "How much longer do you have to sit here, you big bum?" He would just smile, indulge a nugatory nod as though agreeing with me, look at the tooth now and then and go on with his window gazing. Then he was called out into the reception room. "Excuse me," he said. "Yashawli," I bubbled.

Nothing, outside of a loose tooth, fascinates me like one of those mechanical boards by the side of a dentist's chair—squirty bottles, electric bulbs, switches, mysterious pulleys, regulators, dials, push buttons and myriads of other hootanannies. I sat up in my chair all eager-eyed and drooling and listening for the doctor. He was broadening A's some high handshake patient. So I reached out timidly, waited a second and yanked down a switch. Somewhere a bell rang, there was a whirling noise and pinkish stuff began bubbling up in a sort of test tube. I don't care for pink so I threw another switch, hoping for green. I'm a fool for green. Instead a dingy like an old-fashioned egg beater all lit up began to revolve. Then the doctor came back in the room.

I laid back in my chair and closed my eyes. Innocent like. He immediately asked what the blankety-blank I was trying to do. Telling me to do, "Oo ee?" He snapped "Yes you. But I do wish he had not come back so soon. I've always wanted to sail a paper boat in the revolving what-not at the side of a dentist's chair.—Copyright, 1931, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

Popular Radio Program To Be Discontinued

For the first time in five and one-half years there is to be a change in the Sunday night classical concert program on the NBC-WEAF chain.

A power in network programs and the first to introduce new stars as guest artists, the program was suspended for two years after the concert of June 15, 1934, to be resumed about September 1.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Arthur Schnabel, will present another "Pop" concert on the NBC-WEAF network at 7:30 p. m. The program will come through WLW and KDKA.

Hank Simon's Show Boat will come before the microphone again after another weekly program on the Columbia chain at 9 p. m.

IT'S A FACT—No less than 15,000 compositions ranging from the latest jazz to the classic works of the greatest masters are included in the library of the popular Chicago orchestra.

Miss Helen plays over the NBC network and as she plays many new numbers, must keep her library well stocked.

Sandy McFarlane will be heard on the NBC-WEAF hookup at 10 p. m.

Ted Lewis and his Musical Chorus will also be heard on that network at 6:30. Both broadcasts come through WTAM.

The Yale-Harvard crew races at New London, will be described for the radio audience over a coast-to-coast network of WABC-CBS, June 15.

Although the exact period for the broadcast has not been set, Ted Hume, sports announcer, is expected to go on the air at 9 a. m. with the freshman and varsity races at 7 in the evening.

Erno Rapce will direct the orchestra over the NBC-WEAF chain at 8 p. m., featuring well-known classical selections.

Columbia's television station, W2XAB, is scheduled to go on the air regularly, commencing June 15. After that date the station will be on the air six hours daily with programs featuring Columbia artists.

A HOME
A HOUSE?

CERTAINLY the woman whose time within her home is taken up by a ceaseless succession of petty household tasks, cannot be blamed if she comes to consider it merely a house... a house in which there are a certain number of meals to be cooked... a certain amount of cleaning to be done... a given amount of work to be done each day.

It's the home equipment that lightens her household tasks... gives her time for the new things she'd rather do... that really makes of her house... a HOME.

FURNACE IN USE 28 YEARS

Heating Plant Installed by Local Firm Gives Long
Continuous Service.

Seventy-five years ago Charles Romoser started the Romoser Tin Shop. The business next went to C. W. Romoser and is now owned by S. G. Romoser who purchased the C. W. Romoser interests 18 years ago.

During the 75 years this firm has installed 1,500 Wise furnaces in this vicinity. Of this total 900 of them have been installed in the last 18 years.

In Use 28 Years
Mr. Romoser states that his records show that Wise furnaces installed 28 years ago are still in use. He attributes the long life of these furnaces to the fact that they are of the open dome type. This type of furnace gives full benefit of every heat unit generated within it because every inch of its corrugated radiating surface is clean and free from any deposit of soot or ashes, and is in direct contact with the fire.

The fire pot in the Wise furnace is built of heavy cast iron in one solid piece and equipped with a series of cells with openings into the ash pit and around the sides and over the top of the fire. This wonderful feature admits heated air over the fuel, allowing for the consumption of fully 90 per cent of the gas and smoke. It will positively extract more heat from a given amount of fuel than any fire pot that has ever been placed on the market. The Wise fire pot is guaranteed in every detail.

Picture above is the Lee Street Presbyterian church which has used a Wise furnace since Sept. 28, 1922. This is a No. 230 furnace with a 30-inch fire pot. During these years of service this furnace has not been in need of any repairs.

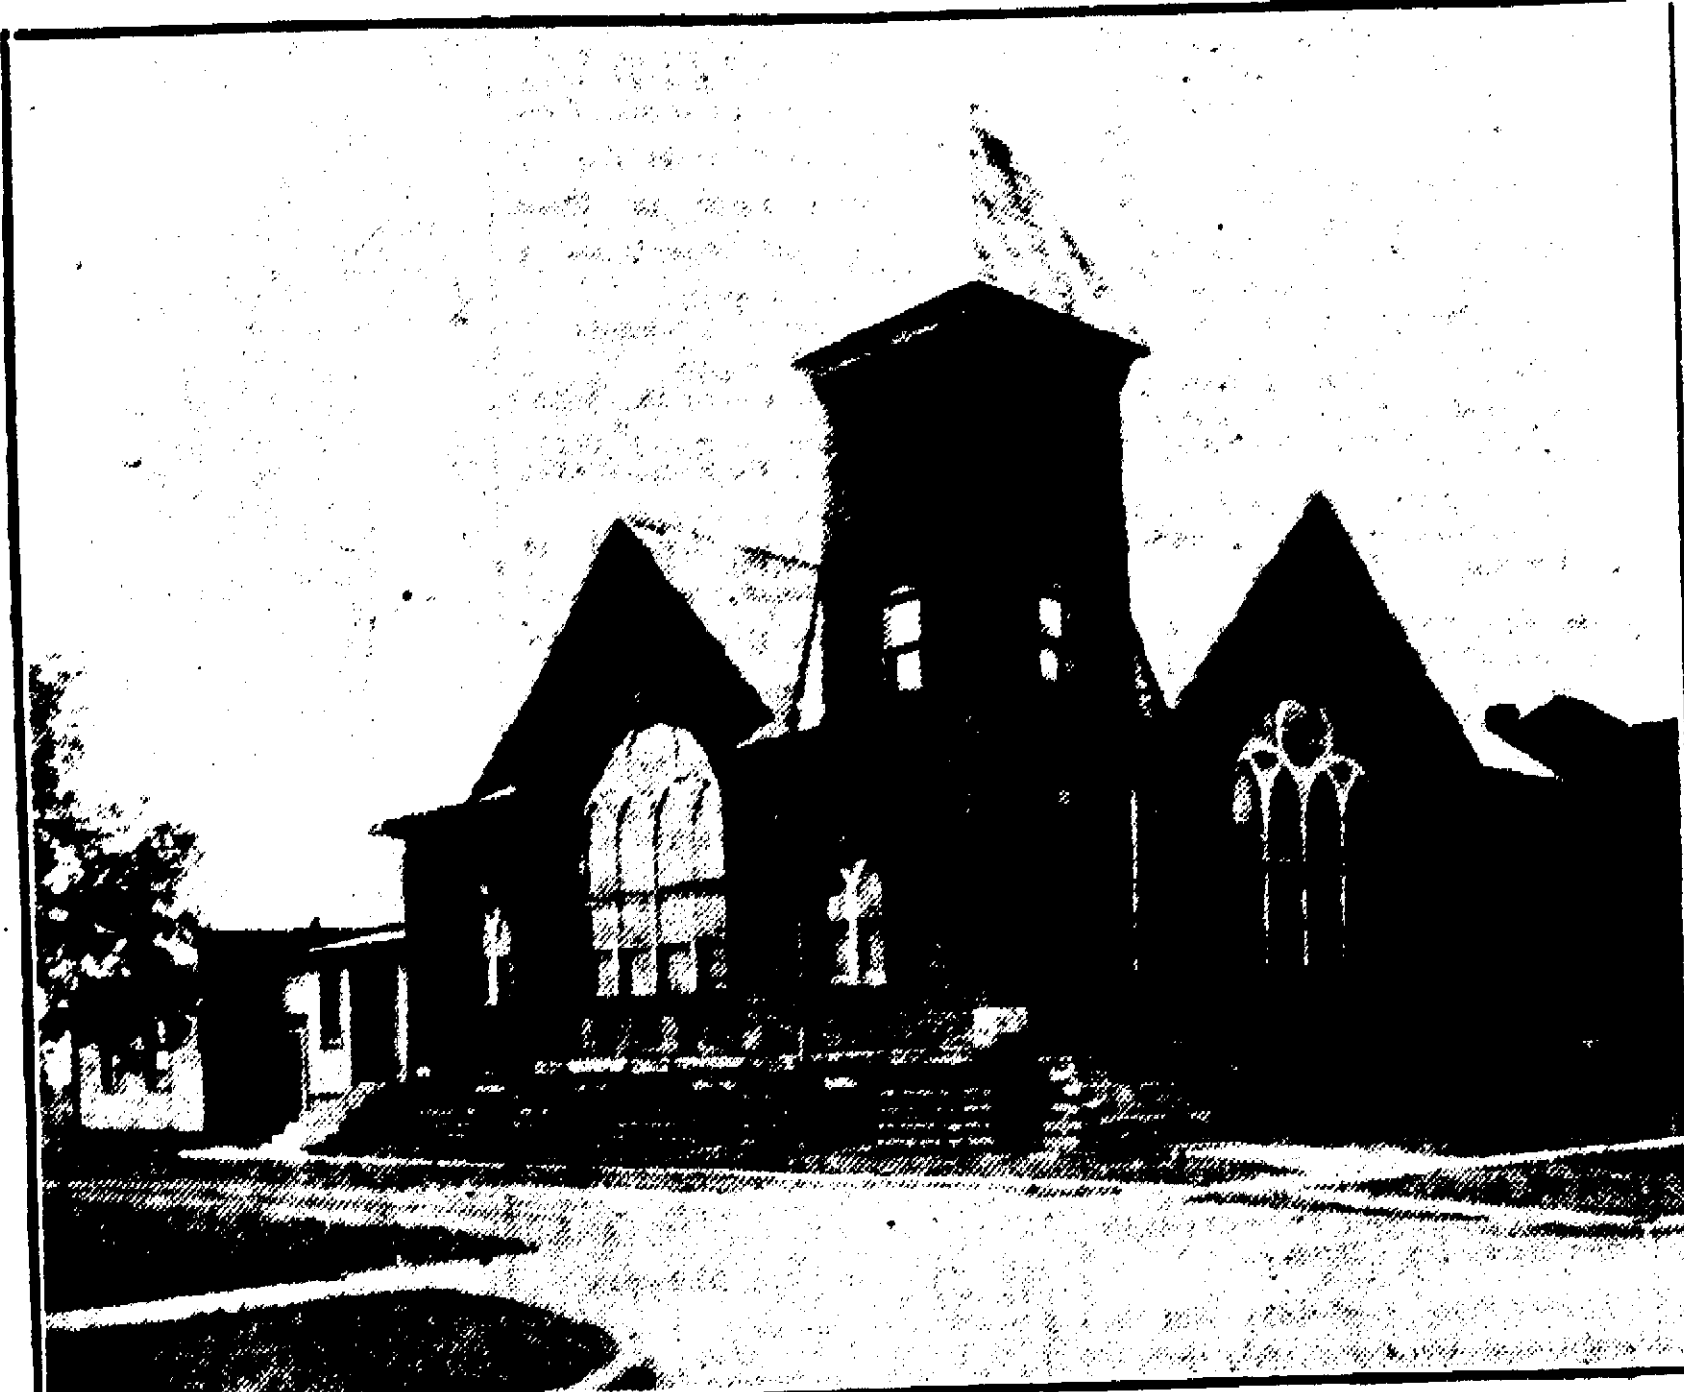

One for All Needs
There is a Wise furnace to meet every requirement in homes, schools, churches, etc.

Besides the Wise furnace, S. G. Romoser has the agency for the Round Oak Boiler Plate and Tar-co Steel Self regulating furnaces. All furnaces installed by Romoser are installed in accordance to the code endorsed by the National Warm Air Heating & Ventilating association. This far reaching research and extensive efforts by skilled heating engineers in cooperation with associations dealing with the heating of homes and other buildings with a warm air system.

Mr. Romoser is equipped to repair all makes of furnaces and to vacuum clean all kinds of heating systems. Many a dollar's worth of fuel is wasted in unclean boilers, heaters and furnaces. Soot and scale in the flues and on the sections act as insulation and render a part of each shovelful of coal useless. In many cases the amount of fuel saved in your clean heater will more than pay for your investment in our service.

Does Sheet Metal Work
S. G. Romoser maintains a shop which is equipped to handle all kinds of sheet metal work and carries in stock a large display of spouting, slate and asphalt shingles of any design and description. You may also purchase house paints, roof paints, coating, etc., from this firm.

At the present time there are five men in the employ of Mr. Romoser. During the busier season he employs from seven to 10 men. These men are experienced in this line of work and all work done by them is done in a workman-like manner.

Mr. Romoser will be glad to inspect your furnace, spouting or roofing free of charge. If any repairs are necessary he will be glad to submit an estimate for repairs with the best quality materials at lowest prices. This is the proper time of the year to have this done and have your home put into condition for the coming winter.

PROTECTING CURTAINS

There are small metal arms that can be placed on the window trim out of sight behind the curtains and opened out at night to hold the curtains back, thus protecting them from damage by rain or dampness. Bedroom curtains are particularly likely to be called on to stand the weather and during the summer windows in other rooms of the house are frequently left open at night. This little device offers excellent protection.

ARCHITECTURE SEEN AS IDLENESS CURE

H. G. Wells Predicts Cities
Will Be Rebuilt from Time to Time.

Once more peering into the future, H. G. Wells predicts a solution of unemployment in the dawn of a new age of architecture.

Opening an exhibition of modern transport at the Royal Institute of British Architects, the novelist envisioned a time when towns would rebuild themselves as men visit tailors for new suits of clothes, thus providing in the process work for all.

"Recently I have been studying economic conditions," Mr. Wells declared, "and I am enormously impressed by the fact that what we used to consider the necessities of mankind are being produced by a smaller proportion of active workers. We have a growing mass of unemployed people for whom work must be found."

"I don't believe that private buying is going to employ the masses of the people again. New forms of employment must be found. The obvious thing is to consider the immense architectural possibilities of rebuilding all mankind, rebuilding every city in the world and reclaiming roads and countryside."

"This is not a utopian idea. It is a plain necessity. If we don't engage upon such an enormous collective enterprise I can see nothing but social disaster ahead."

Mrs. Wells said the most extraordinary thing about the exhibition was the disappearance of tradition in architectural form.

What some people mean by being a good sport is practicing resignation.

Mrs. Snowden in Charge of Church Society Meet

RICHWOOD, June 13—Mrs. C. Snowden had charge of the meeting of the Home and Foreign Missionary society of the Presbyterian church Wednesday afternoon, when the meeting was held in the church parlors. The home topic was in charge of Mrs. William McElroy, and the foreign topic, Mrs. W. E. Beeman. Following a pot luck supper at 6:30 o'clock, a playlet, "The Two Masters" was given by several young women, directed by Roberta Shipley.

Ogan Named Receiver of Richmond Store

MARYSVILLE, June 13—David E. Ogan of Richmond has been appointed receiver for the Marriot and Mather Clothing Store of Richmond. The junior member of the firm, O. L. Mather died about a month ago. Ogan has given bond of $16,000. The store will be continued but if not a success will be sold by the receiver.

FRENCH DOOR CURTAINS

Shirred curtains of fine materials should be used on French doors between two rooms. These cover all the door excepting the top row of panels. If absolute privacy is desired a heavier material may be used and all the panels of glass covered. The curtains may have a rod in the lower edge or allowed to hang in graceful folds from the upper rod.

DEEDS INCREASE

The regular monthly index figure computed from realty deeds recorded in 64 cities by the National Association of Real Estate Boards for April is 62. The March figure was 61.7. These figures are based on the normal 100 used for deeds recorded in the year 1926.

MODERN STORE BIG BUSINESS
Seventeen Thousand Different Items Go to Make Up Van Atta Stock.
Although it takes about 17 thousand distinct and different items to make up a modern hardware store there are about four major lines that are ever growing in interest and popular appeal.
According to R. D. Luke, manager of the Van Atta Hardware Co., these four major lines are Roper gas ranges, Majestic coal ranges, Voss electric washers and Sherwin-Williams paints. Van Atta's are exclusive dealers in Marion for all of these exceptionally fine products.

Roper Gas Ranges
Mr. Luke says "the new Roper Ultra Classique gas range is the finest gas range in America. It is matchless in operation, and matchless in comparison," he says. The new Roper is an artistic triumph, yet highly practical and representing the utmost in convenience. This new creation by Roper will add beauty to any kitchen, lighten kitchen tasks and assure better and more uniform baking results.

Majestic Coal Ranges
For those who use coal instead of gas for cooking purposes, the Van Atta Hardware Co. have Majestic coal ranges. Color and style come into the kitchen with the new Majestic all-enamel range. It is the most beautiful range any one could wish for, having all those qualities which have made the Great Majestic a household treasure in a million homes.

A range that bears the name Majestic is worthy of confidence, for, behind each Majestic stands a company with a nation-wide reputation as makers of excellent ranges. Only the Majestic Manufacturing Co., with its years of experience, could have produced a range as fine as the all-enamel great Majestic. It is a range you may buy with positive assurance of reliability and highest quality.

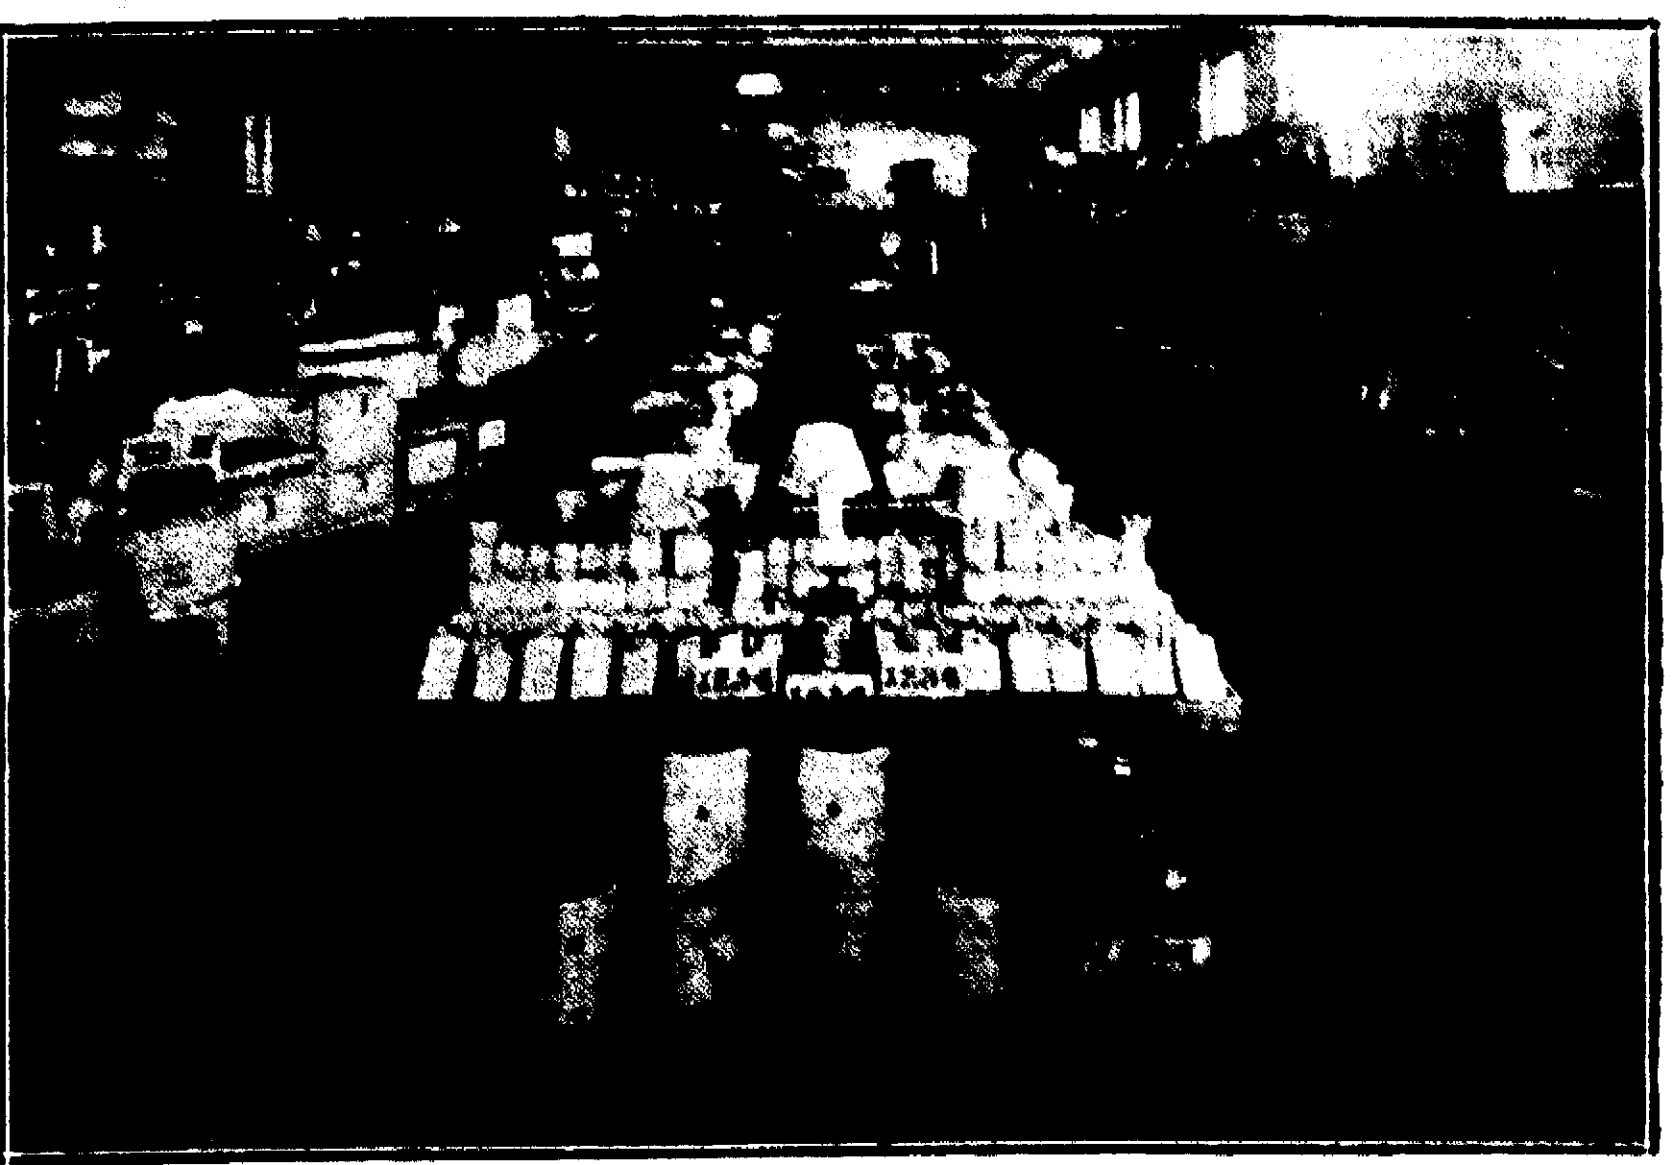

Voss Electric Washers
The new Voss electric washer—the only washer that cleans by the hand-washing method offers every worthwhile feature of washers selling at twice the price. It has a full size porcelain tub; Lovell wringer with large two inch roller; Westinghouse electric motor. All the mechanism of the new Voss is fully enclosed and running in oil, beauty of line and finish—in fact every worth while modern feature to be found in any washer at any price.

Mr. Luke says "Any housewife in need of a new washer owes it to herself to see the new Voss being cause it is the greatest value in washing machine history."

Sherwin-Williams Paints
One of the chief desires of the Van Atta Hardware Co. is to supply the people of Marion and vicinity with good paint.

Mr. Luke says "For beauty and world tested economy use Sherwin-Williams Paints." When once your house is painted with S-W-P your saving has only begun for it will outlast cheaper paints by years. Sherwin-Williams have the pick

VAN ATTA STORE INTERIOR

LIVING ROOM HAS THREE EXPOSURES

English type houses apparently have a universal appeal, and this example has a number of features that should make it popular in suburban localities of the United States.

The large living room, which is to the right of the entrance, has three exposures, opening on one side onto a delightful porch. The chimney serving the large fireplace, dominant feature of the living room, forms an effective part of the exterior design.

Between the fireplace and a small lavatory off the vestibule there is a convenient wood closet. The dining room and the kitchen, with the stair hall and a rear entry, complete the ground floor plan. There are three bedrooms and a bath upstairs, with ample lighting and cross-ventilation from large windows. Clothes closets have been provided.

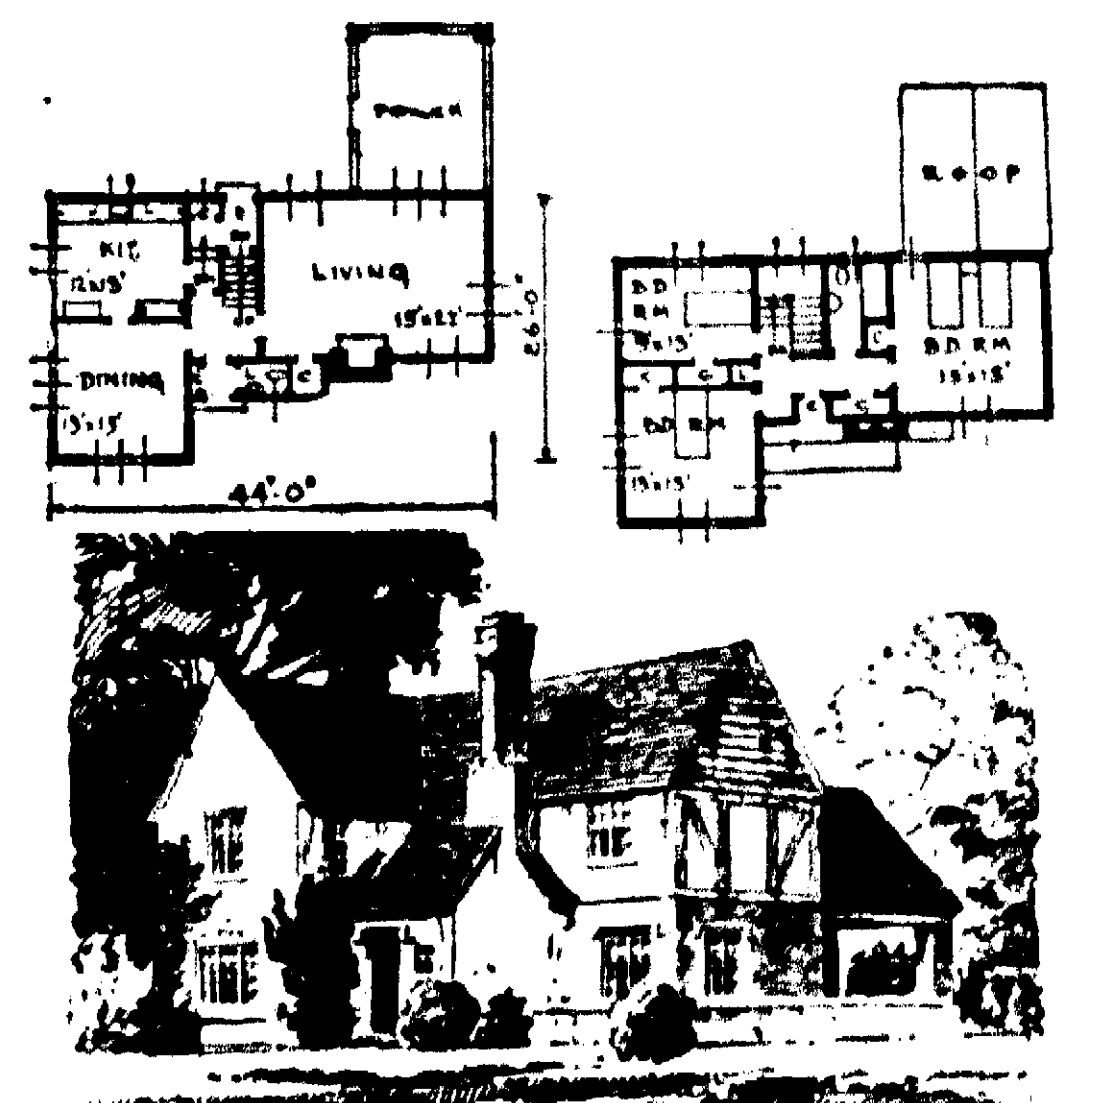

A brick base surmounted by a limestone sill extends around the house. A combination of materials is used on the living room gable-end, brick for the ground floor, half-timber with brick and stucco for the second floor, and clapboards above the latter to the dove cote at the gable peak.

The porch supports are of brick. The window trim in the brick gable-end is stone. Stucco is used for the dining room gable-end, with red brick lintels and casement of the world's best colors. That is why S-W-P colors are so rich, so lasting and so true to character. Beauty of appearance which is also durable is a practical business asset. Keep your house well painted—it not only gives it that much desired "prosperity look" but safeguards the money you first put into it.

Among the many other items carried by Van Atta's are Crosley radios, sporting goods of all kinds, garden tools, aluminum and enamel ware, electrical supplies and fixtures, etc., etc.

Mr. Luke says, "If a hardware store should have it—we have it, and any merchandise we sell must give complete satisfaction."

Just Things

—BY EDNA S. DUTTON—

Romance

BROWNING about in quest of a new love in perfumes one day not so long ago we happened on a sight which caused us to question seriously the new "specs" in which until then, we had every confidence. We looked, and then we looked some more. Right before our very eyes and right where he who very may read, was not one, but several bottles of that old-fashioned German cologne. And they were not hangovers from yesterday, either. They told us at the drugstore counter they keep it in stock and there are folks who call regularly for it. They are not of the present century vintage, but neither are they the last year's bird's nest variety. As a well-known advertiser opines, "there's a reason" and being spring-time and all, we like to think the perfume carries associations of an unforgettable summer's romance or a promise to always remember. Who knows, you may feel the same way about your "Lost Soul," "Prayer of India," "Dream Song" or what have you in a half-dozen decades or so.

Boutonnieres

MORE men are wearing boutonnières this season, don't you think? Speaking up without being asked, I like them. They're the last word when it comes to setting off a summer outfit. Not that I would care to see them go for the mode in a big way and dazzle us with a garden of flowers to match every pair of socks but with moderation, it's a happy thought.

Questions

PARENTS have much to live up to these days and just what the next big surprise is going to be is rather problematical. The young generation start plenty early to check on the family but there are some things we figure on their missing. This is about the newest and best we have heard, however, and it came from a young lady of some nine or 10 summers. Her interest in the family history went back a few years and brought out the question of birthplaces. "Was my mother born in California," she queried of an elder relative. "No, your mother was born so-and-so," naming a town which boasted of quality rather than quantity in the way of citizenry. The reply was something of a surprise and not so very satisfactory, but she met the occasion. "Well, do you mean to tell me I have a small-town mother?"

Plans Guest Day Party
Plans were made for a guest day party June 19 at the meeting of the Woman's Home circle yesterday afternoon when Mrs. J. B. Walker entertained at her home on Wallace street. Guests included Mrs. N. B. Walker of Beeville, Tex., Mrs. Norma Kadzo, Mrs. H. A. Williams and daughter Norma, and Mrs. Kate Clapsaddle.

The guest day party will be held at the home of Mrs. Mary Clapsaddle on north Main street. Mrs. E. E. Parish, Mrs. H. O. Toms, Mrs. Mary Clapsaddle and Mrs. Frank Tuttle were named on the entertainment committee. Mrs. Millie Tachan, Mrs. Leo Hare, Mrs. John Crissinger and Mrs. Mary Clapsaddle, the refreshment committee.

In a contest Mrs. E. E. Parish was presented the prize. During the social hour readings were given by Mrs. J. B. Luellen and Mrs. John Crissinger. Refreshments were served during the social hour in rooms attractively decorated with spring flowers.

CHAPTER 12
Tony's Discovery

The old man came out of the room with a look of surprise on his face. He was looking at the man who had been sitting at the table, and he was looking at the man who had been sitting at the table.

He was looking at the man who had been sitting at the table, and he was looking at the man who had been sitting at the table. He was looking at the man who had been sitting at the table, and he was looking at the man who had been sitting at the table.

He was looking at the man who had been sitting at the table, and he was looking at the man who had been sitting at the table. He was looking at the man who had been sitting at the table, and he was looking at the man who had been sitting at the table.

When Only Kings Had Luxuries

By The Schaffner-Queen Co.

In Upper Egypt, where the pharaohs reigned in ease and luxury hundreds of years ago, many of the royal tombs are still to be seen.

The degree of grandeur of each tomb is a fairly accurate measure of the length of his reign. He kept slaves constantly busy enhancing its splendor, during all the years he occupied the throne.

The same skill and services are now available to the man of moderate means as to the man of wealth. The conscientious, reliable funeral director makes no distinction in the quality of his service. The fundamental expenses are low; further expenditure is optional. But in all instances the appointments are truly "fit for a king."

Jubilee's Pardner
A Story of Boyhood Adventure
BY JUDD M. LEWIS

SATURDAY. Me and Jubilee woke up early this morning, and I hopped out of bed as soon as I woke up, because I was thinking that if the Lost Bag of Tripe thought of it he would get to our barn before I got there and would maybe swipe my possum out and put a dog or a chicken in place of it and then tell me that I was crazy if I thought I had put a possum in there. So I let Jubilee down as quick as I could, and then me and Jubilee got the milk pail and rushed out to the barn, and I lifted up the lid to the box, and there was the old possum and four little possums. I was certainly surprised, but I told her she wasn't going to fool me any more, and I felt in the pocket she has in her stummick and found one more, so then I curled their little tails around each my fingers and my thumb on one hand and closed down the lid and went in the house with five little possums hanging from my fingers, and I went in my mother's room and when I held up my hand my mother and father got up in bed like they were on springs, and then my mother said, "Aren't they cute. Go and show your ant, so I went and walked in on my ant and almost scared her to death, and almost got scared to death myself for she had got up and was dressing and almost hollered her head off.

I took my possums out to the barn and put them in their mother's pocket, and put a broomstick across the empty stall and hung the mother possum on it by her tail where I could watch her whilst I milked, and I knew she wouldn't let go as long as Jubilee kept jumping up and barking at her, and then the bunch came and they all wished they owned her, and I was giving the baby possum till I got done milking for a surprise for them, and then the girls came in and asked where my possum was at, and Banty said there it was, and Feeble hollered, "Oh, darling!" and I looked around and there was the mother hanging and five little heads with bright eyes were sticking out of her pocket to see what all the noise was about. Everybody wanted me to give them one but I told them I wouldn't give them to nobody.

Yonder and her mother wasn't going to be home so we could take them over there and play with them. So we took them over there and turned them loose in the house with the dog and cat, and we went out and looked through the window and the little ones got on the table, on grandma's back and she wasn't her fall over and they hung round it with their tails and she wasn't all around looking for a place to get out. When I looked out, I saw my mother and father and

"Heart of a Wife"
BY ADLE GARRISON

Dicky's Complete Capitulation.

My husband's voice held the note of appeal which I never can resist, no matter what cause for anger I have against him. Lillian often has said that the old proverb about the voice capable of coaxing the birds from the bushes must have been inspired by a direct ancestor of Dicky's.

"What is there to forgive?" I asked fatuously forgetting in the clasp of his arms, as a woman in love always does, that he had wounded me. "It was just a misunderstanding. But are you sure, Dicky, that you are willing?"

His lips came down upon mine, smothering my protest.

"Please, sweetheart, don't rub salt in the wells you gave me," he said. "I've been kicking myself all over the lot for letting my beastly jealous temper run away with me and spoil what ought to be one of the most thrilling moments of your life. It isn't every day that an absolutely untidy playwright gets what is virtually an order from a writer for a play. And take it from me, darling, much as I dislike the old buzzard, I know this of him, that he never lets personal interest interfere with his judgment of a play. You don't mind my saying that, do you?"

Dicky Offers a Plan.

His words were stumbling, his eyes anxious, and I spoke quickly. "No, I don't think, and I think you know that if I hadn't been sure of that, I never should have written a line for him."

"Of course I know it, and I know something else, that never again am I going to act the fool as I did this evening. Honestly, sweetheart, I am terribly proud of you, my brilliant wife, mightily set up over your success. It's just that I can't like a hair on that old devil's head."

"Shall I tell you a secret?" I said laughing, for I could afford to be merry now. "Neither can I. His arms tightened around me. "That makes it unanimous," he said, then as the pages of my manuscript rustled, he loosened his deep abruptly.

"Are they rumpled?" he asked anxiously.

"Nothing that can't be remedied," I said with a smile, although the carefully typed pages were what Mary would call a mess, and I had a vision of Philip Vertenza's fastidious face when he should see them, he whose insistence upon perfect typing and immaculate paper is a proverb in his organization.

But Dicky shook his head in dismay as he took the manuscript in his hands.

"This will never do," he said. "Let's see, how many words, how many pages in these, have you counted 'em, but of course you have, being the particular soul you are."

He smiled down at my flush as I gave him the numbers for which he had asked, and looking off into space, with the fingers of one hand she does any damage something will happen to me.

tapping the other, made a mental calculation.

"Yes, I know a man who can do it if he works all night, and I fancy he'll be glad to, as he always needs extra money. Just let me have this, and I'll have it copied beautifully for you in the morning. Now, no objections," as I opened my lips in protest. "I suppose you're refreshing your memory on this, and you can go on with that pleasant task, while I'm telephoning the man and waiting for him to come after it. You and I'd wager a hundred to one that with that uncanny memory of yours, you could recite the thing backward. How about your typewriter? Is it in good shape? This chap's may not have the bi-colored ribbon."

"Oh! I have an extra ribbon he can have," I said hastily, "but I shall need the typewriter. He can't have that."

I saw my blunder the instant I had uttered the words, but I could not recall them. Dicky grasped my shoulder and whirled me to face him.

"Look here," he said with rough tenderness, "are you planning to do any more tonight? Because if you are, nothing doing! I'm perfectly willing for you to qualify as the world's greatest playwright, but I'm not willing to lose my one and only wife in the process. You're in no condition to do anything save lounge around and take it easy."

"With haste and discretion!"

"But I've been doing that all day," I expostulated. "I've been asleep ever since I returned from Ties's this morning. And I'm feeling very fit, really I am. Besides I'm not going to use the typewriter."

"Who is then?"

"Who but Lillian, Laughing Lillian! The pride of the Graham farm!" Lillian's voice sounded behind us, and Dicky turned to her with the half pleased, half exasperated grin which usually accompanies his greeting of her.

"Sorry to eavesdrop," Lillian said with no contrition in her voice, "but I've only just come up. However, I was in time to hear your fierce but eminently reasonable ultimatum. Having heard it, I'm considering it, and shall file it for reference and act upon it with haste, also discretion. Does that satisfy you?"

Long Shots Pay on Closing Day of Short Ship Races

THE OUTLOOK COPS 3-YEAR OLD EVENT

Meeting Considered by Officials One of Most Successful Here for Several Seasons.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star.
The corps of bookies who have been operating at the fairground oval during the four-day meeting of the Short Ship harness races are probably breathing a sigh of relief today because they do not have to put in another day at the local oval. Having horses win with the odds all against them is not something calculated to make a bookie's heart feel any too light. For the second time in four days this is what happened at the oval yesterday. Twice horses romped home ahead of the field with odds of anywhere from 8-2 to 15-2 against them.

An Excellent Start
Just to get things started out well on the final day's program, The Outlook, a 10-2 shot in the three-year-old race, gave the crowd of about 1,800 persons something to get excited about by showing his heels to the rest of the field and coping the honors in the event. It took just two heats to decide the winner. The other horses never had a chance until The Outlook was ruled out for the third heat. They did manage to get up towards the front once in awhile during the race but that was about the extent of their efforts.

In the third heat J. C. Napoleon furnished the thrill for the patrons by slipping up on the inside of the track to come in second only a nose

ROUGH BOYS SIGNED FOR MONDAY BATTLE

Hit 'Em Hard and Watch 'Em Fall To Be Mat Card's Slogan.

"The bigger and tougher they come, the harder they fall." That's the creed of "Cyclone" Robinson, the big fellow who'll wrestle Tony Rocco, the bruising New York Italian heavyweight, in the main bout of Clete Kauffman's mat show Monday night at Shovel Gym.

Robinson is one confident young man, but it isn't so surprising in view of the fact that the "Cyclone" really lives up to his words.

This fellow really glories in battle and the rougher the going the better he likes it. He'll find it right to his liking Monday night, however, for the Italian, boasting all the fiery temperament that is typical of his race, has a reputation for using every known method of falling an opponent.

Tony is rough, tough and he makes no alibi for the fact.

Added to that is a wide experience in the grappling art. Rocco has met some of the greatest men of the day in wrestling circles and has appeared in most of the big mat centers of the world including New York's famous Madison Square Garden where he built up quite a following among Gotham's Italian population.

Kauffman's semi-final tilt Monday night is apt to uncover some wild action also, for George LaSane, the big Chicago Slav who is signed to meet Father Lumpkin in a two best out of three, one hour limit match is of the type that goes best when he goes roughest.

Lumpkin isn't averse to speedy action on the padded mat either as local fans well know through the "Father's" past appearances in a local ring.

Here and There at the Races

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

It's just history now, the first 1931 local meeting of the Short Ship harness association but much brighter history than has followed any local meeting for the last several years. The crowds were better than those of former meets and the racing also was easily up to the level of any seen here for some time.

The possibilities of having the track lighted for night racing in the August meeting are decidedly better now than before this meeting. Officials believe sufficiently large crowds could be drawn to the fairground oval to warrant the installation of the incandescents. And so do I.

It took four days for a driver to accomplish the feat of winning more than one race but it was finally accomplished. Fitzpatrick turned the trick first yesterday by piloting Morona home ahead of the field in the 2:12 class trot. Beatty then drove Nell W. home in front to be the second driver to win two races. Winners and second place drivers for the four days are: First: Fitzpatrick (2), Beatty (2), Mitchell, Myers, Cartnal, Mallow, Smart, Brickerhoff, Hagler and Beattie. Second: Cartnal, McMillen, Erskine, Critchfield, Green, Stout Parrshall (3) and Beattie.

The events of the program of all four days moved in almost flawless fashion. The starts were faster, due to the newly installed barrier system, and the general movement of things was smoother than usual. Only one bad start was given a field and that came in the first heat of the first event on Friday.

The Outlook, who got the benefit of the poor start dispelled all doubt of his first heat being a fluke when he again romped home ahead of the field in the second heat. And now that's over until sometime in August.

"Doc" Parrshall turned in his second heat victory of the day in the third heat of the final event when he turned Bonnie Pluto loose in the stretch to pass the field and capture second money in the 2:24 pace. The time for Parrshall's time for the heat was slow, only 2:17 1/2.

COLUMBUS SLIPS IN BATTLE FOR PENNANT

Milwaukee Pounds Dean from Mound To Give Red Birds 4-2 Loss.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, June 13.—Today was pennant-raising day for the Louisville colonels, winners of the 1930 American Association championship, and they needed a victory to send St. Paul away pretty thoroughly humbled.

The Saints finally won a game from the Colonels yesterday, 7 to 4, after dropping four straight and relinquishing the league leadership. Kansas City finally broke the winning streak of Sergeant George Connally beating Toledo, 4 to 1. The sarge had won nine straight against one loss, but Max Thomas was just a little better yesterday.

Earl Caldwell of Milwaukee, came up with a five-hit game to give the Brewers a 4 to 2 decision over Columbus. Paul Dean, young brother of "Dizzy" Dean, started for Columbus, but lasted only until the seventh.

Indianapolis and Minneapolis divided a day and night doubleheader, the Indians winning the day-light contest, 11 to 2, and the Millers staging a five-run uprising in the ninth of the night game to win 6 to 5.

ST. LOUIS UNABLE TO SHAKE BOSTON JINX, LOSING THIRD IN ROW

Braves Win Again, 7-5; Cleveland Takes Another Beating from Senators.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer.
Real tough spots in the current pennant race have been few and far between for the St. Louis Cardinals, but they seem to have struck one in the current series with the Boston Braves.

Up to yesterday, the Cards had not lost more than two games in a row all season and had done that only on three previous occasions. Then the Braves stepped up and made it three straight over the National league champions, winning 7 to 5. Ed Brandt and Bur-

BASEBALL SUNDAY

Morral and Sunbury of the Rural Community baseball league, will clash on the Lincoln park diamond Sunday afternoon in a battle that will decide if Sunbury is to continue its occupancy of first place in the standings. Morral is in a tie for second place now and a good battle is in prospect.

Marion's entry in the league will journey to Prospect to take on the Prospect team. In the third game of the league Columbus Hillards will play Delaware at Delaware.

leigh Grimes, pitchers, with two of the best records in the circuit, were sent against each other. Grimes yielded 15 hits, before he was removed while Brandt lasted until the final frame, giving only seven hits.

The defeat reduced the Cardinals' lead to 2 1/2 games as the Chicago Cubs and New York Giants continued their neck and neck race with a victory apiece. The Cubs made it three straight over Philadelphia by a 4 to 1 count while the Glits overwhelmed Pittsburgh 2 to 2.

In the American league, Cleveland's mound ace, Wes Ferrell, was driven to cover, in four innings by the slugger Washington Senators. Led by the supposedly injured Joe Cronin, who made three hits in four times at bat, the Senators won their seventh straight game 7 to 1.

Jack Russell set the Detroit Tigers down with three hits and Boston won 3 to 1 although held to five blows by George Uhle. The Red Sox went into a tie with Chicago for sixth place as the White Hose dropped an 11 to 2 decision to the New York Yankees.

Roy Mahaffey gave the Philadelphia Athletics a 6 to 2 triumph over the St. Louis Browns.

FOUL WON'T WIN

Cleveland Boxing Commission Rules on Heavyweight Title Bout.
By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, June 13.—There will be no victory on a foul in the heavyweight championship battle between Max Schmeling and "Young" Stribling, July 3.

The Cleveland boxing commission announced that in the event either fighter claims a foul, he will be sent to his corner and examined by a physician. If unable to continue, the bout will be ruled "no contest." If he is able to continue after a five-minute rest, but refuses to do so, it will be ruled a technical knockout and the fighter claiming the foul will lose his purse.

The commission also announced it will choose the referee, who will be in sole charge of the fight so long as he sticks to advance instructions. The two judges will do nothing more than ballot on the decision, which will be made by them and the referee.

All harness races at the Kansas Free Fair will be run at night this year.

As long as Prospect keeps playing second division teams the Firemen are certain to retain a tie for first place in the Commercial league race. In fact they may be able to keep at the top when they start meeting first division outfits. The latter remains to be seen but the former is already proven. In four games to date against second division sides the Firemen have rang up four straight wins to hold a tie for first place. The latest victim of Prospect in the General Excavator which succumbed yesterday 9 to 1. Monnett clouted a home run for Prospect. The first man to come to bat for the losers scored his teams only run. After the one score the losers were effectively shut out the rest of the game.

The Erie Traffic club maintained its position in the first division by trouncing the K. of P. outfit by a 6 to 3 count. Inability to hit in the pinches cost the fraternal organization a lot of runs. On numerous occasions the losers would fill the bases and then die off without producing a single score. The three runs for the losers came in the final inning.

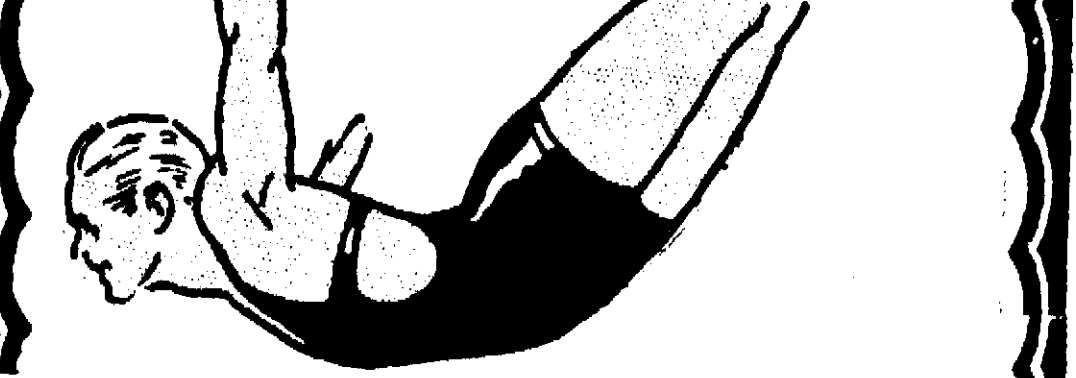

When the Commercial league enters cannot find any one else they can beat they just hang around until they stack up against the Wesley Juniors and then write a game down on the win side of the ledger. Company B is the latest team to accomplish this stunt, taking the Juniors into camp yesterday 10 to 0. Four homers rattled off the bats of the soldier boys, Lantz, Owens, McAninch and Elder all hit for the circuit.

Today in Marion Markets
Groceries, Produce, Meat, Grain, Livestock
Specials in fruits, vegetables, butter and eggs were being offered week-end shoppers by dealers today. Butter was being offered at low 22 cents a pound, eggs 17 cents, new potatoes 20 cents, and strawberries 15 cents.
The prices prevailed only for today, however, and dealers are expecting a return to normal prices next week. Blackberries have made their appearance on the local markets, the fruit is of good quality and was selling today at 30 cents a quart.
Homegrown strawberries are becoming more plentiful, while southern Ohio berries continue to supply the bulk of the demand. The supply of home grown fruit is becoming larger and dealers are expecting the season to be well under way next week.
Large supplies of both fruits and vegetables were on display today in anticipation of the usual heavy week-end buying and a wide range of prices prevailed.

DUST STORMS CAUSE GAIN
Canadian Crops Probably Damaged in Worst Storms This Season.
CHICAGO, June 13.—Renewal of dust storms in Canada led to fresh early upturns in grain prices today. Southern Saskatchewan points reported that the dust clouds were the worst yet this season. Opening unchanged to 1/4 cents higher, wheat afterward rose all around. Corn started unchanged to 1/4 cent up and subsequently scored a general advance.
Believers in higher wheat prices emphasized assertions that Canadian crop conditions were the poorest ever known, and that the country's wheat acreage this season had been largely reduced. Acreage cuts of 30 to 35 per cent in Argentina and Australia were also made much of, with Russia's seeded acreage reported as only about the same as last year. Predictions were current that Europe's new wheat would be mostly unavailable until the last of August and Russia's not before the end of October.
Reactions at times in wheat were promoted, however, by messages showing that Canadian crop conditions were not unanimously bullish. A Chicago expert telegraphing from Calgary, Alberta, said wheat prospects improved rapidly coming north. He added that earliest fields were jointing, and that although the straw was short and damage had been done by dust blowing, the prospects were favorable for a crop in much of the territory referred to. Corn and oats duplicated the action of wheat. Provisions lacked support.

HOOVER FORCES TO REMAIN IN ACTION

Renomination Campaign Begun This Week Will Be Kept Going.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, June 13.—The drive for President Hoover's renomination launched at this week's conference of young Republicans by administration leaders will be carried on actively at once.

Tomorrow night the President starts on a three-day speaking tour into Indiana, Ohio and Illinois.

Republican managers interested in a second term for him are looking forward to his addresses in these states, which yielded many of the Democratic congressional gains in the last election.

Three Addresses Listed
Mr. Hoover will speak before the Indiana Republican Editorial association at Indianapolis on Monday night, at the memorial to Warren G. Harding in Marion, O., Tuesday afternoon, and at the tomb of Abraham Lincoln in Springfield, Ill., Wednesday. He also will stop at Columbus, O.

On July 4, two members of his official family will go into Pennsylvania. Governor Pinchot of that state has been mentioned frequently as a prospective Republican Presidential candidate.

Secretary Hurley, who last night gave the conference of young Republicans a recital of Mr. Hoover's record, and applauded Vice President Curtis, is slated for an address from Independence hall in Philadelphia. Ernest Lee Jahneke, assistant secretary of the navy, has been asked to speak at Altoona the same day.

There is every indication that the Hoover forces are concerned over the expressions of discontent emanating particularly from the Republican independent faction.

Brookhart Makes Prediction

Senator Borah of Idaho added to the discomfiture of the Hoover forces this week by leaving for the west without disclosing his plans in next year's Presidential campaign.

Bender Bank Records Ordered Under Scrutiny of Court.

By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, O., June 13.—Records of five Cleveland banks in which former State Senator George H. Bender had personal accounts were ordered brought into court today in his trial on charges of embezzlement and perjury.

The state sought to show that there was a connection between Bender's personal accounts and withdrawals he is alleged to have made from the funds of the constitutional law enforcement league, which he headed in the Marshall bill campaign in 1928.

Miss Jessie Coates, Bender's former secretary, has testified he made out 27 checks to himself or cash to the amount of $11,750.

All you have to say to a gossip to keep her going is, "Isn't that terrible."

HOMEOWN BERRIES ON LOCAL MARKETS

Arrival of Crop Is Feature of Produce Business This Week.

The appearance of homegrown strawberries was a feature on the local markets this week. A few homegrown berries were being sold from house to house by growers early in the week and by the middle of the week, dealers were carrying a few that were selling at the same price as the shipped varieties. Next week will see the berry season well started dealers said today.

The recent rains together with the warm weather of the past few days has done much to produce a large crop of strawberries. Although berries today were being offered as low as 15 cents, dealers refuse to predict what the prices will be when the season is in full swing.

A drop in both new peas and green beans was reported by dealers this week. The supply is large and a price of 15 cents or two pounds for 25 cents prevailed the latter part of the week. Cucumbers also took a nose dive and were being offered as low as five cents each.

This week saw the passing of the canning pineapple season. Dealers report buying not so heavy as in former years although the fruit sold as low as $1.20 a dozen. Dealers are still carrying fairly large supplies, selling at from 10 to 25 cents each.

CITY RUSHES STREET WORK FOR TUESDAY

Traffic Lanes To Be Completed on Pavement by Monday.

Employees of the city service department started to work today at 4 a. m. in an effort to complete the painting of the non-parking zones and pedestrian lanes by Monday.

The covering of the street car tracks on east Center street from Garfield park to Baker street was completed last night and workmen today were cleaning the street at the intersection of Greenwood street where the curbs were cut back by the service department.

Men from the service department were also put to work this morning, putting the final clean-up touches on the streets and boulevards in the vicinity of the memorial.

CLEARINGS HIGHER
An increase of $14,053.47 in bank clearings this week over that of last week, was shown in a check made at the clearing house today. This week's clearings were shown to be $288,961.32 compared to $274,907.85 during the preceding week. The absence of a clearing on May 30 when the banks were closed in observance of Memorial Day accounts in a measure for the greater clearings this week.
